JUBILEE YEAR 2025
PILGRIMS OF HOPE

FOREWORD

We are pleased to present Jubilee Vibes, a special edition celebrating the grace-filled moments of our Jubilee Year. This magazine highlights the experiences, reflections, and inspirations shared by Individual Sisters over the past three months of Jubilee Year 2025.

Inside, you will find:

- Articles and reflections on Sisters' journey of faith and service
- Inspirational stories and personal testimonies
- Photos and cherished memories from our Jubilee celebrations

This booklet seeks to:

- Share the joy and gratitude of our Jubilee Year with our community and beyond
- Inspire and encourage our Sisters to continue their journey of faith and loving service

The Jubilee Vibes booklet will be shared with all the members of our communities, as well as with other Provinces and the Generalate. We warmly encourage all our Sisters to read this special edition, reflect on its messages, and share their insights with one another.

May this Jubilee Vibes booklet be a source of joy, inspiration, and renewed commitment for each of us as we continue to walk together in the spirit of our Jubilee.

PILGRIMS OF hope

Hope does not disappoint us because God's Love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit, that has been given to us. (Rom 5:5-6)

The Jubilee Year 2025, proclaimed by Pope Francis as the Jubilee of Hope, is a sacred time of grace and renewal for the whole Church. With the symbolic opening of the Holy Door at St. Peter's Basilica, this special year invites us to embark on a spiritual pilgrimage not just with our feet, but with our hearts. Drawing from the papal bull Spes Non Confundit "Hope does not disappoint" we are reminded that Christian hope is not passive waiting, but a vibrant and living trust in God's promises, even in the midst of trials.

This Jubilee is a holy opportunity to return to God with renewed faith, to seek forgiveness and reconciliation, and to become true Pilgrims of Hope in a world that longs for light. It is a call to embody love through prayer, acts of mercy, and service to the suffering and the poor. Pope Francis reminds us that hope is not just for ourselves it is meant to be shared, especially with those who are weighed down by hardship or injustice. This year challenges us to recognize Christ in our midst and to radiate His light through everything we do.

Mary, the Mother of Hope, stands as a powerful witness for us remaining faithful even in sorrow, trusting God's plan with unwavering strength. Inspired by her, and sustained by the Holy Spirit, we too are called to carry the lamp of hope into the darkest corners of our world.

As we journey together through this Holy Year, let us open our hearts to transformation. May this Jubilee strengthen our faith, renew our love for God and neighbour, and inspire us to live as beacons of hope, joy, and peace in every place we go. Let us hold firm and take heart hope in the Lord, now and always.

Embracing the Spirit of the Jubilee

The Jubilee Year is a sacred and grace-filled time, a divine invitation to return to God with renewed hearts and rekindled hope. Rooted in the biblical command of Leviticus 25:10 to "proclaim liberty throughout the land," the Jubilee reminds us of God's unfailing mercy and providence. The very word "Jubilee," derived from the Hebrew word Jobel, meaning "ram's horn," symbolizes a call to awaken our spirits and prepare for a deeper encounter with the Lord. As followers of Christ and pilgrims of hope, we are invited not only to celebrate but to spiritually prepare ourselves through prayer, confession, Holy Communion, acts of mercy, and the study of the Second Vatican Council documents.

This year serves as a profound reminder that we are called to step out of darkness into the light, to be cleansed again in the waters of our Baptism, and to live as the people of God with hearts full of love, forgiveness, and compassion. The Jubilee is not just a celebration; it is a journey a pilgrimage that urges us to let go of revenge, bitterness, and sin, and instead cultivate the loving nature of Christ in our everyday lives. Hope becomes the driving force that lights even the darkest corners of our lives, guiding us to speak out against injustice and to be courageous witnesses of faith and mercy in the world.

Our community has joyfully embraced this call. We participated in the inaugural Jubilee Mass, attended enriching sessions each month, visited designated churches for prayer and spiritual activities, and served the poor and the sick with acts of compassion. From praying the Stations of the Cross and the Rosary to sharing food with the hungry and comforting the suffering, our actions reflect the very heart of this Jubilee love in action, faith in motion. As we walk together as pilgrims of hope, may this holy year transform us into beacons of God's mercy, healing, and peace, bearing witness to the joy of the Gospel.

A Journey of Faith, Unity and Compassion

The Jubilee Year at St. Joseph's Institutions for Women, Kurnool-2, was launched on 18th January with deep spiritual enthusiasm, embracing the theme proclaimed by Pope Francis "Pilgrims of Hope." The day began with a symbolic procession around the campus, as staff and students carried Jubilee flags and joyfully sang the theme song, "Like a flame my hope is burning." The solemn Inaugural Mass, celebrated by three guest priests, drew inspiration from Isaiah 61 and the Gospel of Luke, emphasizing Jesus as the bearer of hope and good news for the oppressed. This powerful beginning set the tone for a year filled with faith, fellowship, and outreach.

One of the most meaningful aspects of the Jubilee was its emphasis on ecumenism. On 27th January, Ecumenism Day was observed as part of the Christian Unity Octave. Rev. Fr. Anthonappa Chowrappa and Rev. Dr Victor Immanuel delivered thought-provoking talks about unity among Christian denominations, encouraging all to embrace our shared beliefs and work together in faith. This message of unity deeply resonated, reminding us that we are all children of the same God.

The spiritual journey continued with monthly Adoration held on 25th January, 8th February, and 8th March. These moments of quiet reflection allowed the campus community to grow closer to God and deepen their faith. On 8th February, Student Appreciation Day was celebrated, giving students a platform to express their creativity through music, dance, and drama. It was a joyful occasion that boosted their confidence and celebrated their God-given talents.

On 16th February, Reconciliation Day was observed with great solemnity. Through spiritual talks and the sacrament of confession, students and sisters were encouraged to reflect, repent, and renew their relationship with God. The symbolic burning of written sins served as a powerful gesture of starting anew in faith and grace.

Living out the message of mercy, the institution launched several outreach programs through the SHE WOLFF'S team. Acts of service such as distributing food in slum areas, visiting old age homes, and providing essentials to those in need brought the Jubilee message to life. One of the most touching experiences was the visit to Siridi Sai Old Age Home on 19th March during St. Joseph's Feast. Sharing time, joy, and gifts with the elderly created moments of warmth and connection.

The Jubilee journey continued with visits to the School for the Blind on 22nd February, the State Home for Girls at Peddapadu on 25th March, and Don Bosco's home for Shikari and street children on 30th March. These encounters were filled with love, as students shared songs, stories, games, and smiles while distributing fruits, hygiene kits, and sweets. These small acts of kindness had a profound impact, nurturing values of compassion and social responsibility among the students.

In every way, the Jubilee Year was a transformative experience. It was not only a time of prayer and celebration but also a call to action — to walk together as Pilgrims of Hope, living out our faith in real, tangible ways. It inspired a renewed commitment to unity, compassion, and service in the hearts of all who participated. As we move forward, may we continue to carry the light of hope and be witnesses of Christ's love in our communities and beyond.

Mercy in Action: A Journey of the Heart

"Be merciful, just as your Father is merciful." Luke 6:36

This invitation from Jesus is not merely a command it is a way of life. It calls us to reflect the heart of our Heavenly Father, who is rich in mercy and slow to anger, whose love knows no bounds and whose compassion reaches even the most forgotten. As I reflect on this verse, I recognize that to be merciful is to see others not with judgment, but with tenderness; not with indifference, but with love. It is in the daily moments of quiet, simple, and sincere that mercy is lived most powerfully.

I recall a day that left a deep imprint on my heart a day when a beggar came to our convent in great need. His appearance spoke of suffering and abandonment. Yet in that moment, I was moved by a compassion that came not from me, but through me. I offered him food, and as he received it with gratitude, I felt something sacred pass between us. In his eyes, I saw the face of Christ. That simple act, a meal shared in mercy, became a moment of grace. It reminded me that whenever we serve "the least of these" (Matthew 25:35), we are serving Christ Himself.

Another deeply moving experience has been visiting the elderly. Many of them are lonely, their lives silenced by age, their stories forgotten by the world. But when I sit beside them, hold their hands, listen to their stories and smile with them, I see how powerful our presence can be. Psalm 71:9 speaks for them: “Do not cast me off in the time of old age.” In those quiet visits, I have learned that love does not need to be loud. Mercy does not always need action. Sometimes, it is just being there—seeing them, honouring their dignity, and assuring them that they are not forgotten.

Through these experiences, I have come to understand that mercy is not just about charity; it is about communion. It is about stepping into someone else's suffering, even briefly, and saying with our hearts: "You are not alone. You are loved. You are worthy." In serving others, I have discovered the sacredness of every human soul and the quiet voice of God whispering through acts of love.

This Year of Mercy is not only a time of spiritual renewal, it is a chance to become more Christ-like. To forgive freely, to love deeply, and to serve joyfully. May we each strive to reflect the boundless mercy of God in our homes, communities, and the world around us. Let us allow the light of compassion to guide our steps and may our hands become extensions of God’s love to those in need. May this be a truly blessed and merciful year for us all.

From the Heart of Prayer to the Light of Hope

In this Jubilee Year, Pope Francis reminds us that we are pilgrims on a journey of faith, walking with hope that never fades because it is grounded in God's unwavering love. The Holy Spirit, present in our daily lives, keeps this hope alive like a lamp that never goes out giving us strength to persevere, even in difficult times. Our journey is also a call to rediscover mercy, which is at the heart of who God is. Mercy is not just an act, but the very love of God reaching out to us, even in our weakness. When we show mercy to others, we become living signs of God's presence in the world.

As pilgrims, we are also seekers searching for meaning, truth, and peace. This search brings us closer to God through prayer. My own prayer life has grown deeper during this time, as I've come to understand that prayer is not just something we do it's a way of living. In silence, in nature, in serving others, God speaks. Prayer becomes a powerful connection that transforms our hearts and opens our eyes to see God everywhere.

Through hope, mercy, and prayer, this Jubilee is not just a celebration it is a life-changing journey back to God, where we are invited to love more deeply, live more faithfully, and trust more fully in His grace.

Hope Does Not Disappoint

Hope has always been a big part of my life, especially during difficult times. There have been moments when I felt uncertain times of loss, failure, or waiting for something that seemed impossible. In those moments, hope wasn't just a nice idea it was something that helped me keep going, even when I couldn't see how things would turn out. One verse that became very meaningful to me in 2025 was Romans 5:5: "Hope does not disappoint, because the love of God has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit." That year, I faced a big disappointment. I had prayed and believed that I was following God's will, but things didn't go as I expected. I remember wondering if my hope had been wrong. But later, I began to see how that unanswered prayer led me to something even better something I never imagined. I realized that real hope isn't about getting exactly what we want; it's about trusting that God knows what is best for us.

That same year, the "Bull of Induction" reminded me of the importance of prayer, mercy, and service. One moment that really touched me was visiting the monastery sisters with my community. We brought them a bag of rice, and they were so grateful. It was a simple gift, but it meant a lot to them. Their warm welcome and peaceful way of life reminded me of the beauty in simplicity and the strength of faith. That visit showed me how small acts of kindness can bring joy and how important it is to reach out with love and generosity.

As part of the Jubilee Year, I made a promise to spend one hour every second Saturday of the month in adoration of the Blessed Sacrament. At first, it was hard to quiet my mind, but little by little, I started to feel peace. Sitting in silence with Jesus, I heard in my heart, "I am with you. Trust in My plan." Those quiet hours helped me grow closer to God. They became a special time for reflection, thanksgiving, and letting go of my worries. I began to notice a change in myself more peace, more trust, and a stronger sense of God's presence in my life.

Another meaningful moment during the Jubilee Year was my pilgrimage to the Infant Jesus Church. As I entered the church, I felt a deep peace. I prayed for healing, guidance, and strength for myself, my loved ones, and the world. My sisters and I lit candles and prayed together in front of the Infant Jesus statue. It was a beautiful time of grace, reflection, and hope. That visit reminded me again that God is always with us, even when the journey is hard.

Through all these experiences hope in hardship, acts of service, quiet adoration, and a prayerful pilgrimage I've come to see that God's love is constant. He is always working in our lives, even when we don't understand how. Hope, mercy, and faith are what carry us forward. And truly, this kind of hope never disappoints.

Renewed in Hope, Rooted in Love

A Jubilee is not merely a marking of years—it is a sacred pause in time, a moment chosen by God to invite His people into renewal, reconciliation, and grace. As we stepped into this Holy Year with the Opening of the Holy Doors on January 5th, I felt the gentle stirring of something profound within me. Surrounded by the theme of hope, it wasn't just an external celebration, but a personal call to reflect, reconnect, and realign my heart with God's purpose. It was a moment where the noise of the world faded, and I felt drawn into the quiet whisper of grace—a whisper that urged me to deepen my relationship with God, my community sisters, and the people around me.

The invitation of Jesus in Mark 6:31, "You must come away to some lonely place all by yourselves and rest for a while," became real for me. In prayer, I found that rest. Not in elaborate words, but in the simplicity of presence. As Fr. Rex Anjalo S.J. reminded us, prayer is not to think much, but to love much. It is in this love that I found the heart of Jubilee—a love that reaches out, forgives, and restores. Our time with the Brahmanivadi people became a powerful expression of this love. We did not just offer rice and groceries; we offered our hearts. We sat with them, listened to their sorrows, shared in their grief, and became one with their pain. In those sacred encounters, I saw Christ suffering, and yet, I also saw Him healing.

This Jubilee reminds me that while "man cannot live by bread alone," we are called to be the word made flesh to others—to be present, to share, to comfort, and to walk with the wounded. Their tears became my mirror, reflecting my own need for healing and deeper compassion. I came face to face with the silent strength of those who suffer, and it called me to grow in humility, in faith, and in love. As I continue this Jubilee journey, I carry with me a renewed commitment to walk the path of service—not as a duty, but as a privilege, led by the grace of God and sustained by the quiet power of prayer.

Jubilee 2025

The cross of Christ is the hope that cannot ever be abandoned because we are always in need of it, especially in the most difficult moments.

The Cross, in the shape of a sail, is transformed into an anchor that imposes itself over the waves in motion. A universal symbol of Hope.

The figures represent humanity from the four corners of the World. They are embracing each other to illustrate the solidarity between the peoples, as the first holds onto the cross.

The rough sea is a reminder of the difficulties of the pilgrimage of life. Often, personal events as well as those of the world, press on us more intensely, demanding a greater hope.
