NEWS FLASH - 4

A Year of Break throughs, Pressures, and Global Transformation

The year 2025 unfolded as a complex blend of rapid innovation, shifting geopolitical dynamics, environmental strain, and major economic transitions. It was a year defined by contrasts, where remarkable progress coexisted with deep uncertainty, and where humanity advanced while confronting the vulnerabilities of an interconnected world.

Global Developments: Nations worldwide prioritised digital infrastructure, cybersecurity, and energy independence. Some regions strengthened alliances, while others faced rising political tensions and fragmentation. Climate stress, economic inequality, and regional conflicts drove a significant rise in global migration, reshaping demographics and policy discussions.

Economic Landscape: The global economy experienced an uneven recovery. Countries investing in technology and green energy saw accelerated growth. Others struggled with inflation, resource shortages, and unstable markets. Automation and AI reshaped labour markets, expanding tech-driven roles while reducing traditional manufacturing jobs. Supply chains became more localised and resilient, supported by robotics and predictive analytics.

Digital currencies and blockchain-based systems gained momentum, though regulation lagged. Climate Environmental Shifts Environmental pressures intensified: Severe heatwaves, floods, and storms disrupted communities. Water scarcity caused agricultural strain and rising food prices.

Governments increased investments in renewable energy, battery storage, and carbon-capture technologies. Environmental activism pushed corporations toward more sustainable practices.

Disasters & Crises: 2025 saw several major crises: Natural disasters, wildfires, hurricanes, droughts, earthquakes, affected millions. Cyberattacks grew more sophisticated, targeting banks, hospitals, and government systems. Political unrest rose in regions facing economic inequality and resource shortages.

Science & Technology: Innovation surged across multiple sectors: Personalized health tech advanced with real-time nutrient synthesis and biometric monitoring. The metaverse is fragmented into niche digital worlds. Swarm robotics transformed logistics, agriculture, and emergency response. Quantum computing made major strides in cybersecurity and data analysis. Bio-integrated materials—self-healing surfaces, adaptive clothing, breathable architecture, entered mainstream use.

Society & Culture: Daily life continued to evolve: Remote and hybrid work became standard worldwide. Education shifted toward AI-driven personalised learning. Mental health awareness grew, supported by digital well-being tools. Entertainment blended physical and virtual experiences, creating immersive media landscapes.

Inequality & Social Challenges: Despite progress, disparities widened: Many regions became “tech deserts” with limited access to advanced tools. Economic inequality deepened between high-tech cities and rural or climate-affected areas. Ethical debates intensified around AI autonomy, data privacy, and algorithmic fairness.

Overall Reflection: The year 2025: was a year of profound contrasts. Technological breakthroughs reshaped industries and lifestyles, yet environmental pressures, economic instability, and social inequalities grew more pronounced. The world became more connected, more automated, and more adaptive, while also becoming more aware of the fragility that accompanies rapid change.

FAMILY IS THE FIRST SCHOOL

As the Bible can change persons parents can change and mold their children from home. A child is born in the family to the parents so they are responsible persons for the child's future, also their character. They live good life, sincere, truthful, loving each other, helping and praying at a fixed time every day and also speak truth always. Surely they hear, see good and grow in the same way.

Family must come together every day at a particular time in the same place where, Sacred Heart, Mother Mary and St. Joseph's pictures are placed so that children could keep some flowers in front of each picture. After praying the family rosary children should read one chapter from the Bible and parents and parents should explain what is read and tell how to practice them in our in our lives. Thus we practice the word of God in our daily lives. Surely God will guide in our daily tasks. Surely God will guide us not in our tasks and living but also in our duties. Thus we will grow in good habits and there will be improvement and betterment in the way we discharge our tasks.

Abraham and Job were tested by God but they were able to withstand the tests they faced by His very grace. So also we are able to live our lives amidst all sorts of trials and temptations with continued mercy and the grace of God. We need to follow His teaching which is to love all and to be joyful. To live peaceful life we need patience. We must practice self control, show kindness towards all give up negative feelings and foster positive feelings. Irritability is very unbearable. It is one of the most unbearable among 75 emotions. God's Spirit is supporting and is enabling us to be upright and not to commit the same fault. Psalm 14 that the person who lives righteously will not fall but stand firm. Ezekiel 7 and 47 also speak of sin and righteousness

God is a travelling God. "I am safe in His hands and I have no fear. I journey on my way. What need I fear when God is near?" Every individual is connected with God and is protected by God's grace and no one can disturb that grace in any person without his or her knowledge. Retreats and recollections in the case of priests and religious and regular attendance at daily Holy Mass family prayers etc in the case of lay persons can lead and persons in the right path and help to grow more and more in holiness. Deuteronomy 8: 2 speaks and instructs to keep God's commandments so as to inherit the Promised Land with its fullness of wealth and riches. Ecclesiasticus 3:3-4 speak of respecting and honoring parents and one who does so will inherit eternal treasure. Those who honor their parents and elders draw their blessings in abundance. A person's glory comes from his parents and family background. The Lord is leading and guiding us and we need to be steadfast in following the way He is showing us. He cannot leave us alone when we are faithful in keeping His commandments and following the way He is showing. The Lord says "When you are in the house of prayer I am close to you guide you and instruct you in the right way." T book of Sirach 13:26 says "The mark of a happy heart is cheerful face."

Children should read these chapters in Sirach, Deuteronomy, psalm 14, and Ezekiel 7 and 47 so they will understand better the love, plan and grace of God and live their lives in a better manner. In this way they will become good examples for others. All negativity will be wiped off. They will grow in holiness and live an exemplary life. They will become good citizens and whatever in their best for the good of the country and their state and above all bring good name for their parents and be icons of love joy and service to all people.

THE LOVE THAT CREATED HUMANITY HEALED THE WORLD

Love is the essential nature of God, not merely an emotion or an action among many. As stated in 1 John 4:8, "God is love". The act of creation itself flows from this overflowing, voluntary love, designed to bring forth beings created in His image for relationship and to give Him glory. As human created by God to reflect the Creator, intended to live in harmony with nature and each other. This original design was an act of pure, unmerited affection. A Love that has even gone to the extent of entering mortal world as person, to save it. Jeremiah 31:3 in the Bible is a powerful verse from God's message to Israel, declaring, "The LORD appeared to me from of old, saying, 'I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore, with lovingkindness I have drawn you.'". This verse highlights God's unconditional, eternal love for His people, demonstrating His constant faithfulness and initiative in drawing them to Himself through grace, even amidst their failures and struggles, promising hope, and restoration. The introduction of sin corrupted this design, leading to separation (estrangement) from God and the introduction of suffering and brokenness into the world, which can be seen as a form of "de-creation".

God's response to this fallen state was not abandonment, but a plan of salvation motivated by His enduring love, aiming to reverse the effects of sin and restore His creation to its intended purpose. As it is said from John's Gospel "For God so loved the world, that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life" (John 3:16). Through Christ's work, believers are made into "new creations" (2 Corinthians 5:17). The redemptive love that healed the world is a "vitalizing power" that touches every part of a person's being, freeing the soul and bringing serenity and joy.

We know what love is because God has demonstrated it through his mighty acts, culminating in the incarnation, death, and resurrection of his Son Jesus, who died for our salvation while we were yet enemies of God (Rom. 5:8-10). From the promise of God through generations, His Love, considered is everlasting, but it seems to be losing its depth in today's world, at present in the society love is increasingly portrayed as fleeting, superficial, and disposable. The emphasis on instant gratification, leaving behind a shallowness that can be disheartening. In this commercialization world love tends to commodify human beings themselves, objectifying them as means to fulfil personal desires rather than valuing them as individuals with inherent worth and dignity. As there are many types of love but God's love is Agape which describe the pure and divine that is unconditional, expressed as an act of the will of the second person in trinity.

The person of Jesus Christ possesses both a full divine nature and a full human nature, as this unity bridged the infinite gap between God and man, allowed humanity to experience God's presence and mercy, while his divine nature enables him to accomplish salvation, making him the unique bridge that sin could not sever, the promise of Jesus' birth to David is fulfilled through the Annunciation (Luke 1:32-33) and the genealogies in Matthew and Luke, stating Jesus, though conceived by the Holy Spirit, would receive David's throne, be called "Son of the Most High," and reign forever, fulfilling_2 Samuel 7:12-16's_prophecy of an everlasting kingdom from David's line, making Jesus the eternal King and Son of God. So, the promise of God fulfilled through Jesus' incarnation giving us Immanuel God is with us who healed the spiritual, emotional, and physical brokenness of the world.

So, this is the same divine love that flows from the Creator, which initiated salvation, is meant to flow through us to the world. And this God's love must become a force for positive spiritual change, making us the "divine agents for positive spiritual change". By displaying compassion and working for good, inviting us to participate in God's ongoing work of restoration, revival, called to love each other as Christ has loved us, with an unconditional and sacrificial love, which brings healing for the sick, hope and light in the lives of people living in spiritual darkness under the power and influence of the ruler of this world .

When Sight Fades, Gratitude Grows
From Shadowed Vision to Radiant Thanks

My cataract experience has opened a deeper inner vision. As my physical sight dimmed, I began to understand more closely the struggles of the blind and learned to walk with greater care and compassion. It has awakened in me a renewed spiritual sight—an invitation to thank God each day for the precious gift of our eyes, the light of the body. May this small journey remind all of us in the JMJ family to value our blessings and to see life with gratitude and grace.

A Year of Grace: Growing Closer to God and His People"

As we conclude our Jubilee Year, I look back with deep gratitude for the abundant blessings this sacred time has brought. The Jubilee has helped me grow in compassion, kindness, and sensitivity toward all who come into my life. It taught me to listen patiently to the struggles of families, to offer counsel with a gentle heart, and to lift them up in prayer. Through these encounters, I discovered a renewed closeness to God and a deeper connection with His people.

A special grace of this year was our outreach through JMJ Social Service Society. Every month, we went in search of the poor and needy to distribute provisions. As we walked toward their homes, we could see the joy and satisfaction reflected in their eyes—a silent gratitude that touched our hearts. Their blessings came back to us as a gentle reminder that in giving, we receive even more. This simple yet profound exchange felt like a true miracle: meeting people we did not know, yet becoming part of their lives through acts of love.

Through these experiences, the Jubilee Year has strengthened my mission to serve with humility, compassion, and dedication. It has drawn me closer to the heart of God and to the people He entrusts to us. May the spirit of this Jubilee continue to inspire us to walk in love, serve with joy, and be instruments of God's grace in the world.

Honouring Our Departed: Guardians of Our Path"

To remember our departed is to remember who we are today. Their sacrifices, silent struggles, and unwavering faith have shaped the path on which we now walk. Though their journey was marked with challenges, they laid a smooth road for the generations to come. Through their dedication, wisdom, and prophetic vision, they showed us how to enter the narrow gate that leads to eternal life.

Their initiatives, once simple inspirations and "brainchild" efforts, have grown into the vibrant ministries we cherish today. What they began in humility, we now continue as a mission, to support the poor, uplift the marginalised, and serve God's people with compassion. Their legacy is not merely in the works they left behind but in the spirit with which they lived their lives.

As we move forward, we carry their torch of faith. We must remain grateful, lovingly remember them, and pray for their souls who have gone before us. They walked ahead of us, following the Master's call, and now invite us to continue the same path of service, sacrifice, and love. May their memory inspire us to live this vocation with renewed zeal, deep humility, and joyful commitment.

A Day of Empathy – My Experience at a Medical Camp for Transgender Persons

Attending the medical camp organized for the transgender community was a deeply transformative moment in my journey as a religious sister and healthcare worker. My self Sr. Vijaya Mathangi, serving as a pharmacist at St. Theresa's Hospital, I have been blessed with many opportunities to encounter people in their moments of pain and healing. Yet, this day touched me in a way no other experience had before.

It was the first time I participated in an event dedicated entirely to embracing, supporting, and uplifting our transgender brothers and sisters. As I listened to their stories their wounds, their silent battles, their longing to be accepted I felt something stir within me. Many shared the discrimination they face daily, the lack of understanding, and the struggles in accessing proper healthcare. Their words moved me so deeply that tears filled my eyes not only out of sorrow for their suffering but out of admiration for their courage, dignity, and unbroken spirit.

The camp offered medical check-ups, consultations, counselling, and mental health guidance. But what made the day truly sacred was the atmosphere created by the father, doctors, and volunteers. Every person was welcomed with tenderness, respect, and genuine compassion. Seeing the relief and gratitude on their faces reminded me how powerful simple human kindness can be.

This experience reaffirmed for me that healthcare is far more than treating the body it is ministering to the human heart. I felt humbled and grateful to be part of a mission that extended love, acceptance, and dignity to a community that is so often unseen and unheard.

As I walked away at the end of the day, my heart carried a renewed sense of empathy and responsibility. I realized that even the smallest acts of love can bring healing, hope, and transformation. Everyone no matter who they are deserves to be seen, heard, and cherished. This day will remain forever etched in my heart, inspiring me to continue promoting inclusivity, equality, and compassionate service in my life as a JMJ sister and as a healthcare professional.

Experiences like this remind me that God often reveals Himself in the most unexpected encounters. In the eyes of those who suffer silently, in the smiles of those who feel accepted, and in the hearts of those longing to belong to the face of Christ.

I pray that this experience may not end with one day, but may grow into a lifelong commitment to walk gently, love deeply, and serve humanity without discrimination. May God continue to guide my steps as I strive to be a small instrument of His healing and His boundless love.
Thank you.

Eight Days of Grace: My Journey of Spiritual Renewal

My eight-day retreat became a profound journey of spiritual renewal, an intimate encounter with God that touched my heart, clarified my vocation, and strengthened my commitment to religious life. Under the gentle guidance of Fr. Jobin organised by the Provincial Council Pauline, each day unfolded as a moment of grace, reflection, and inner awakening. This sacred time invited me to look deeply into my spiritual life and ask essential questions: Will my God know me? What is the criterion by which God calls me? What is my vocation? Through prayer, silence, and reflection, God revealed His answers with tenderness and clarity.

Called by Love, Not Merit: The most powerful truth I received was this: the first and only true criterion of God's call is His love. God calls me not because of my merits, achievements, or perfection, but simply because He loves me. He does not measure my past or judge my future. My vocation is not accidental, God has a purpose for my life, and He has chosen me with intention and affection. Once I stand with God, everything becomes possible, for with Him there is no limit to what I can do.

Prayer: A Living Conversation: During the retreat, I rediscovered prayer as a loving conversation with God, a heart-to-heart encounter that must flow sincerely and simply, like a child speaking to a father. True prayer is never stagnant; it must be alive, genuine, and rooted in love. I learned that attachment to the world leads to detachment from God. Therefore, I must constantly choose God above all else. Divine wisdom calls me to rely not on people for affirmation, but on God alone, who is my strength. Religious life is not about rewards; it is about faithfulness in small things and in the responsibilities entrusted to me.

Returning to My First Love: I reflected deeply on the spirit working within me and heard a gentle call to return to my "first love" the original joy and purity with which I first responded to God. True prayer must come from the heart; it is not mere words but a sincere offering. Like Jacob, who cried before the Lord asking for a blessing, I, too, am invited to pray with sincerity and persistence.

The Eucharist: Holy Eucharist became the heart of my retreat. Without the Eucharist, there is no true religious life. I realised the importance of preparing well for Mass, bringing a clear intention each day, and spending time in thanksgiving after receiving Jesus. Praise frees the heart from heaviness, and gratitude enlarges the soul.

Purity, Scripture, and Holiness: The retreat reminded me that all glory must be given to God. I must stop criticising or judging others, for purity of heart opens the way to seeing God. The Word of God is true wisdom, and ignorance of Scripture is ignorance of Christ Himself. As a religious, I am called to holiness of mind and body, without compromise. I learned that impurity often enters through the eyes, seeing is not the sin; looking with desire is. Prayer and impurity cannot coexist; one will always push out the other.

Obedience Rooted in Love: Obedience is not a burden but an intimacy with God. Following Jesus should not be rooted in fear or duty, but in love. Every moment of the retreat reminded me that without God's help, I can do nothing. My vocation is His gift, my strength is His grace, and my life is meant to reflect His love.

Conclusion:

These eight days renewed my spirit, deepened my faith, and reminded me of my purpose. My heart now speaks one simple truth. I belong to God, and He has called me out of love.

RELAX....RENEW..... REGENERATE....

The steadfast love of the lord never ceases, His mercies never come to an end they are new every morning. Every gathering always gives us new idea and new thoughts. It is always a joyful moment for all of us where we are like own sisters to share and enjoy each other's –presence. The 3 days of seminar arranged by the provincial and her council organized by Sr.Innamma yeruva and Sr. Prabha the junior directress.

The day was began with lot of excitement and enthusiasm visiting the different places it helped me relax myself by capturing the nature and the peaceful atmosphere

The second day which is most and important day where I felt the presence of God spending whole day in the adoration keeping all my worries aside and surrendering to god everything talking to God and getting guidance by the fathers where I felt week and where I am not courageous it helped me to be strong in my vocation. I was nourished by the holy Eucharist.
Spending time in prayer for me is to communicate with God, having intimacy with God, reducing stress, and seeking guidance. It involved me to praise, confess, intercede, and listening to the voice of the Holy Spirit.

The third day session was conducted by Sr. Innamma she says we are expecting God to change everything not us yes it was really inspired me. Most of the times I to feel same but I realized when I change myself aromatically I see the change of everything. Revival always comes from within not from everywhere, revival is time for spiritual changes.

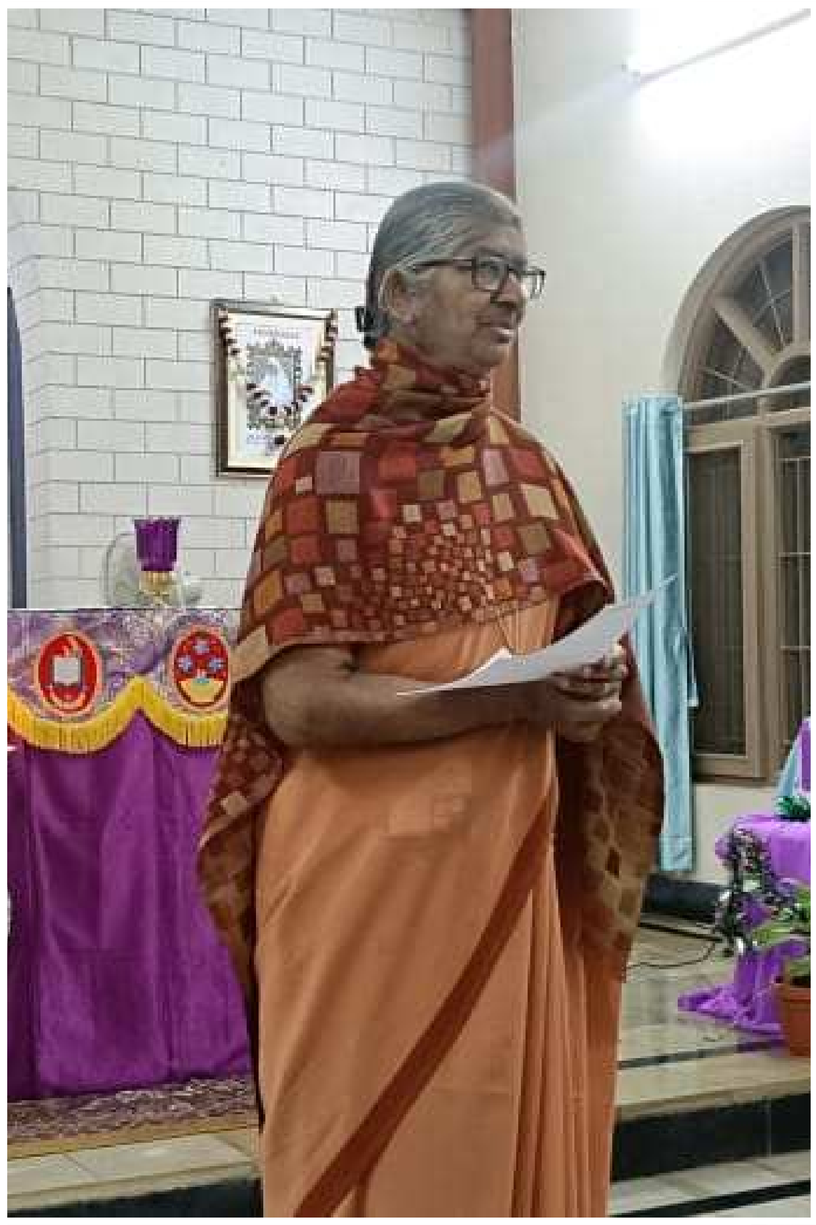

I can say boldly I am strengthened spiritually physically and mentally I am really grateful to my sisters who always thought of us and arranged the seminars and many other activities.
